Vocab:
___Record: 5 new vocabulary words - Reminder: vocab. is to come from reading for class and include definition, part of speech, and accurate use in a sentence.

Grammar:
Read: Pronoun information (Below)
___*Write: Top Ten Essay Problems
1. Go to p. 218 Stobaugh
2. Read about Parrellelism.
3. In a few sentences, explain the correct and incorrect format and write your own example of an incorrect sentence and show the correction.

Stobaugh:
Read: Lesson 13 and 14

Supplement:
Read: at tabbnet.com/britlit - Week 11
Note-Taking on Index Cards*
HO on Help with Research Paper topics

Frankenstein:
Read: Frankenstein through to end.
Prep: Consider this prompt as you read:
Is the depiction of Frankenstein’ monster as a good-monster-turned-bad-by-society in agreement with scripture? If not, why?
Prep: Be prepared to discuss: Is the novel, Frankenstein, a horror story or a romantic, anti-science novel?

___*Write: TYPE Answers to Frankenstein Study Guide Questions - below
___*Write: (Group 2) Discussion question and possible answer from Frankenstein
Use: "Analyzing" section from Bloom's Critical Thinking Cue Questions
___*Write: (Group 1) Significant passage and why from Frankenstein.
Note: Your quote MUST answer one of the Higher-Order Thinking Skills prompts.

Evaluate: Herrick "To Virgins" Essay

Research Paper:
1. Research your topic for your Research Paper. The goal is to find out if there is sufficient information to support the writing of a 6-8 page paper. Next week we will write a rough thesis statement.
2. E-mail me your top 1 - 3 Research Paper topic ideas.

Optional History:
None. Quiz next week.

*Optional Honors:
1. Pick 2 essay prompt in Lesson 13 or 14 (Stobaugh)
2. Copy: essay prompts at the top of your paper
3. Journal 1 -2 paragraphs about each.

Supplemental Information:
Pronouns
When referring to a person, "who" and "whom" are the preferable relative pronouns. "Which" cannot be used to refer to people. You would write about the person "whom" the author mentioned, not the person "which" the author mentioned.

Use "that" to introduce information that defines the subject of that part of the sentence. For instance, "the castle that housed the mad king" is an appropriate phrase if the reader must know the descriptive information in order to understand which castle the writer means. By contrast, "the castle, which housed the mad king" simply gives you more information about the only castle under consideration; the reader will understand the sentence even without this further description.

Also read information on the use of "that" at http://web.ku.edu/~edit/that.html

Frankenstein Study Guide Questions:
Chapters 17-22
1. (11) Is Frankenstein's choice to crate a female creature unselfish or selfish? Explain in one full paragraph. Include a snippet quote
2. (12) How is the trip down the Rhine River to the North sea an example of romantic literature? What romantic elements does the author use here?
3. (14) What evidence is given in Chapter 19 that Clerval is also a parallel character to Frankenstein? What light does this shed on the character of Frakenstein? Why do you think the author might use multiple parallel characters?
4. (17) To what is Frankenstein alluding when he says, "but the apple has already been eaten, and the angel's arm bared to drive me from all hope"? What does this allusion mean in the context of the novel?

Chapters 23-24
5. (7) Why do you think the monster leaves notes and food for Frankenstein as Frankenstein pursues him?
6. (8) Knowing that his life is "hateful," why does Frankenstein not simply allow himself to die? Why does he ask Walton to continue his revenge if he succumbs to death?
7. (12) At the death of Elizabeth, Frankenstein says, "Life is obstinate and clings closest where it is most hated." What does he mean by this statement?
8. (13) Frankenstein stands at the graves of his friends and family, upon whom does he call to help him in his pursuit of the monster? Who responds to his appeal? What might the author be suggesting by this?
9. (15) Why do you think the author switches back to Robert Walton as her narrator again in Chapter 24?
10. (23) Read the monsters final speech and find the accusation he levels at the rest of the human race. Is the monster justified unmaking this complaint? Explain your answer in one full paragraph. Include a quote